

Stuart Warren-Hill's videos, see right, are part of Not Enough TV, a weekend of artists' films and videos selected by Moving Art Studio, and showing under the glass dome of a landmark industrial building recently converted to artists' studios. Short, recent works by 28 international artists are grouped in 90-minute sequences. Exceptions to the "recent" and "short" qualifications include The Way Things Go (1987) by Peter Fischli and David Weiss and a 90-minute rendition of Wagner's Valkyrie by Belgian brothers Frank and Koen Theys. Look out for works by Gusztáv Hámos and Belgians Anne Smola and Monsieur Delmotte. A programme with precise screening times is available at cultural centres and bars around town. Moving Art Studio, 52 Rue des Tanneurs, Brussels, September 26 from 6 pm to midnight, September 27 and 28 from 2 pm to midnight. Telephone: 534.45.88.
